Impact of decline in petrol prices

•10. SHRI CHIMANBHAI MEHTA: Will the Minister ot PETROLEUM AND NATURAL GAs be pleased to state:

(a) what is the likely or actual impact of the decline in petroleum prices in the in :ernational market on the local petroleum products' prices-

(b) to what extent the import hill of the petroleum products would be reduce^ in monetary terms in the current financial year;

(c) whether Government are reconsidering the previous upward price revision of the petroleum products in view of the new favourable factors; and

(d) what is the production cost ol crude oil per ton and o'her petroleum products comparable to international prices?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF PETROLEUM AND NATURAL GAS (SHRI CHANDRA SHEKHAR SlNGH): (a) There will be no impact of a 'all in crude prices on petroleum prices in the domestic market.

(b) As the oil market is still fluid it is not possible at this stage to estimate the savings on this account till the end of the year. However, according to a preliminary estimate, the savings on import of products are expected to be of the order Of Rs. 264 crores.

(c) No, Sir.

(d) The domestic cost per ton cf production of crude oil for ONGC was Rs. 877.32 for 1984-85. In a continuous processing industry like oil refinery with a multi-product line of production with a common input, it is not possible to assess and quantity precisely the cost of production of each product in a refinery. It is difficult to compare the domestic production costs arid that of products with international prices as there is no relationship between the indigenous crude oil cost and international crude oil prices on the one hand and product prices on the other.
